HIC – Harold Import Forges a Relationship with Dexter-Russell

JANUARY 30, 2009

HIC – Harold Import Company has joined forces with the largest and oldest manufacturer of professional cutlery in the United States, Dexter-Russell® Inc. who, through their long and rich history has maintained a tradition of excellence in both materials and workmanship.

Establishing the first cutlery company in the United States on June 18, 1818 in Southbridge , Massachusetts , Henry Harrington manufactured surgical equipment and shoe knives, as well as fine crafted firearms. As his cutlery line expanded, he gradually discontinued his firearms business. In 1884, Harrington introduced the Dexter trade name. The Dexter line of fine kitchen and table cutlery soon gained a reputation for quality in America 's homes and restaurants.

Today the same tradition of quality and variety is carried on in Southbridge , Massachusetts , where Dexter-Russell®, Inc. produces the broadest line of professional cutlery made by any single manufacturer in the world.

"Dexter-Russell brings its rich history of New England craftsmanship and modern technology to a new line of kitchen tools for the home. Every product is manufactured with the same quality standards that professional chefs demand. We are proud to join forces with Harold Import to bring these exciting new products to marketplace."
